FORMER ASHTON GIRL GETS CLEW TO BIRTH THROUGH OLD PAPERS

Shows Dr. Brennen Had Adopted Child and Raised Here.

The Chicago Journal of last evening contained the following story of interest to the readers of The Telegraph, and especially those residing in and about Ashton:

Mrs. Max Flexner, wife of a wealthy New York city merchant, a former Ashton girl, learned for the first time this week the real story of her parentage. Glancing through the papers of her supposed father, she found that she had been adopted.

Her foster parents were Dr. J. W. Brennen and wife of Ashton. The neglect of the physician to destroy a paper which gave her the first inkling of the truth was sufficient to lead to a complete disclosure of the facts, so carefully hidden for two decades. This paper contained the address of T. J. McDaniel, of Plymouth, Hancock county. With her two small children Mrs. Flexner hastened to Plymouth and found McDaniel. He told her the entire story.

Born Near Plymouth.
In the year 1890 a man and a woman walked into Plymouth. They were ragged and barefooted and had traveled all the way from the southern part of Arkansas. They were William Metzgar and wife. They fitted up a rude shack in the timber near Plymouth and there twin babies were born, boy and a girl. The latter became Mrs. Max Flexner twenty years later. The mother died soon afterwards, and the father asked the authorities to provide a home for the two babies. They were sent to a Galesburg orphanage.

A few months later Dr. Brennen and his wife adopted the girl, while the boy was taken by a northern Illinois farmer.

Educated Abroad.
Dr. Brennen decided to educate his adopted daughter in Germany, and she spent several years abroad. Later she studied music in Italy, and attracted more than ordinary attention by her talent as a pianist. She spent some years in New York city and there met her present husband. Her married life has been happy. She paid frequent visits to Ashton, the home of her foster father. A few months ago he fell ill and soon afterwards died. His entire fortune was left to his adopted daughter.

While looking over his papers, during the process of adjusting his estate, Mrs. Flexner accidentally ran across the document which for the first time disclosed the fact that she was a foundling.
At the earliest opportunity she hastened to Plymouth, and here found complete confirmation of the story. She also learned that shortly after the authorities had taken charge of the two babies, the father disappeared. It was reported that he had gone back to Arkansas. He was heard from no more. Mrs. Flexner has determined to keep up the search, and will endeavor to locate her parent. She proposes to write to the county clerk of each county, giving the facts she has learned.

To Give Examination to Highway Officials

The state highway department will give the examination to candidates for the office of county superintendent of highways for counties in the second district, nine in number, at Dixon beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning of Friday, Feb. 27.

From two to five candidates from each of the nine counties are expected throughout the district. The names of the examiners have not been announced.

State Engineers at Work on Road Plans

A force of twenty engineers are at work in the office of the state highway department in the National bank building, preparing plans and specifications for the program of road building in district number two this year. The Dixon office, which has been made a permanent one, has charge of all of the road work in ten counties of northern Illinois. The engineers are now working on a program of approximately 30 miles of new hard surfaced road in this district.

The largest job under consideration at this time is a 53-mile stretch of hard surfaced road to be of concrete, bituminous concrete or brick and extending from Moline to Princeton. Another important piece of work is the connecting highway "from Rockford to Freeport, a distance of 20 miles, to be 18 feet in width. Contracts for this piece of road will be let Wednesday, Feb. 25. This road is to be of concrete construction and work will doubtless be started early in the spring.

Plans and specifications are also being prepared for extending the Lincoln Highway improvement from the end of the brick paving east of Dixon to connect with the reconstructed hard surfaced road west of Franklin Grove and the contract for this work will doubtless be let the latter part of this month.

Wilson to Preside Over Cabinet Again

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Feb. 12.—The next meeting of the cabinet probably will be called and presided over by President Wilson.

Secretary Lansing who has been issuing the calls for the meetings for several months, said today he had written cabinet officers that there would be no more regular sessions of the president's official family for the present. He would offer no explanation, but it was understood, that his letter was written by direction of Mr. Wilson.

Throughout the president's illness the cabinet has met regularly and when the coal strike situation became acute the meetings were increased from one to two weekly. There was no meeting yesterday and none will be held tomorrow.

For several weeks now the president has been talking more and more of a hand in the conduct of official business. Secretary Tumulty said today he had never seen Mr. Wilson looking better.

U. S. Senate Honored Lincoln; Adjourned

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Feb. 12.—The original long hand manuscript of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was read in the senate today by Senator Keyes, republican, New Hampshire.

Senator Smoot, republican of Utah, of the senate printing committee announced that a photostat of the address would be printed in the Congressional Record.

The senate then adjourned as a further mark of respect.
The manuscript presented by Mr. Lincoln to Edward Everett, has been in the possession of Senator Keyes' family for a number of years.

In the house the Rev. Henry N. Couden, chaplain, in his opening prayer said:

"Today we would sing with all true American songs of praises to Thee for our beloved Lincoln—a man of God called of God to be the saviour of his country in its darkest hours; pure in his conceptions, strong in his convictions, firm in his purposes, great in his goodness, good in his greatness, the paragon of American citizenship; who bore in his heart the sorrows of a nation and laid down his life that it might live. But he lives his country lives. May his life, character and achievements inspire us to follow his illustrious example."

Not only does the warning appear on the door, but the lock is at all times turned so that no infection can enter. If business is to be transacted, the occupant first sees his caller before admitting him and the first question following the customary salutation is, "have you had the flu recently?"

TURKS' HATRED SEEMS CENTERED UPON THE GREEK

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Constantinople, Feb. 12.—Work in the harbor here is completely disorganized as a result of delay on the part of the peace conference to reach a decision relative to the future status of Turkey. It is impossible to move cargoes to Black Sea ports because of the Bolshevik menace and speculators here are holding clothing and foodstuffs for higher prices.
Thousands of Russian refugees are arriving here and are cordially welcomed by the people of the city. The average Turk wears out his capacity for hatred in expressing his enmity against the Greeks and pays little attention to persons of other nationalities, even traditional enemies such as Armenians, who come to this overcrowded city.

General resentment against Greek occupation of Smyrna is seemingly on the increase and all factions here say peace is impossible if Greeks control any territory where there is a predominant Turkish population. Premier Venizelos of Greece, General Paraskevopoulos, commander of Greek troops at Smyrna, and Mr. Verghandis, Greek high commissioner, are reported to have met on the island of Chios recently and decided to hold all Greek forces, approximately 400,000 under arms. They also resolved to call the class of 1921 recruits to protect districts held by the Greeks within forty miles of Smyrna.

GIVES DETAILS FRANCO-SERBIA SECRET TREATY

Rome Paper Publishes Purported Copy of Agreement.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Rome, Wednesday, Feb. 11.—(Delayed.)—The two secret documents which the Idea Nazionale says were exchanged last fall between the Serbian and French governments—the Serbian document proposing a military alliance and the French document responding sympathetically, but with reservations—are published by that newspaper today. The Serbian proposal, the Idea Nazionale says, was entrusted to N. P. Pachitch and M. Trumbitch to submit to the then French premier, Georges Clemenceau, and reads as follows:

"In the event of a conflict between the French nation and a Mediterranean power Serbia also will mobilize its fleet, requisitioning the merchant marine. The moment hostilities are declared between France and a Mediterranean power, Serbia will attack. Serbia also will put at the disposal of France her railways, connecting the ports on the Ionian Sea with the Dalmatian coast.

"France is to leave Serbia free concerning the future settlement of a naval base at Cattaro, the defenses of which are not to be dismantled so that in case of need they can readily be put in an efficient condition. France pledges herself to aid in the building and formation of a Serbian merchant marine fleet and also guarantees the integrity of the territory granted Yugoslavia by the treaty of St. Germain without, however, engaging herself to give military aid in the event of a Balkan conflict.

"This military accord shall be part of a secret convention lasting 25 years with the option of renewal. The treaty of alliance can be published if the contracting powers deem such action necessary after ratification by the parliaments of the two countries."

The second document, according to the Idea Nazionale contained the French answer, declaring that the project presented undoubted advantages for France as it afforded basis on the Dalmatian coast in case of future conflicts and open fields for French commercial expansion. It said, however, that it could not be applied without radical modifications.
In the opinion of the French government, a commercial treaty and customs conventions ought to precede a military treaty.

Offer Was Serious Says Ex-Crown Prince

By Associated Press Leased Wire
The Hague, Wednesday, Feb. 11.—(Delayed.)—It is declared in reliable quarters that former Crown Prince Frederick William was serious in making his offer to the entente governments to surrender himself in place of the Germans in the allies' extradition list and that he is inclined to believe that the allies will accept his plan.

It is learned here that former Emperor William is strong in his disapproval of his son's action.
Nothing was known at Wieringen of the ex-Crown Prince's intentions before his messages to the heads of the various governments had been dispatched and the only notification given by Frederick William was one to the Dutch government when he sent the communications abroad.

Newspaper reports to the effect that the Grand Duke of Hesse and his son and likewise seven German generals named on the extradition list had escaped into Holland are discredited at the Dutch foreign office. That office declared it did not consider it possible for the men named to cross into Dutch territory.

SETTLEMENT OF RAIL CRISIS IS UP TO WILSON

Director Hines and Union Heads Have Prepared Briefs.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—President Wilson will have a personal conference tomorrow with three representatives of the railroad brotherhoods to discuss the wage demands of the 2,000,000 railroad employees which are to be referred to him today by Director General Hines.

Selection of their spokesmen was left by the president to the union representatives who chose R. M. Jewell, acting president of the American Federation of Labor; W. J. Manion, president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers and Timothy Shea, acting president of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineermen.

It was said at the White House that the president had been giving the railroad situation serious thought for several days and that it was his own suggestion that he see the union men. He was understood to have felt that he could handle the situation better if he saw the representative personally.

The union leaders will see the president on the south lawn at the White House, where Mr. Wilson spends a portion of each morning. Before meeting the brotherhood officials the president will study in detail the report on the wage negotiations which Mr. Hines will submit through Secretary Tumulty.

Wilson Will Decide.
The Director General was in conference with Mr. Tumulty this morning and then returned to his office to complete his memorandum for the president, who will be asked to make the final decision on the demands presented by the railroad workers nearly a year ago.

Mr. Hines' memorandum which was sent to the White House shortly before noon was understood to have embodied the claims and arguments of the union officials with whom he has been conferring since February 3.

Very Serious Situation

While railroad administrative officials and union representatives apparently were inclined to regard the situation as quiescent, White House officials expressed concern at the gravity of the problems presented. Without disclosing what these questions were, it was declared that the general public did not realize the serious nature of issues involved.

Union officials, with the exception of Maintenance of Way Employees and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, apparently were willing to leave the case in the hands of the president. Although there was dissatisfaction because living costs had not been reduced, it was evident that the union men felt that another opportunity should be given for adjustment of the difficulties which have been held in abeyance at the president's request since they were submitted last July.

May Meet Late Today

Mr. Hines has made a tentative appointment for this afternoon with J. B. Malloy, vice president of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and shop laborer, and his committee of ten, to discuss the organization's "alleged grievances which led to its call for a strike next Tuesday."

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—McKees Rock Lodge, Number 231, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, today asked Attorney General Palmer, through Representative Guy Campbell, to investigate a recent heavy advance in rents in McKees Rocks a railway suburb of Pittsburgh.

This action, it was explained in the letter, was taken because the government had promised the brotherhood to attempt to reduce the cost of living and if necessary use the office of the attorney general to bring about such a reduction.

SETTLEMENT OF RAIL CRISIS IS UP TO PRESIDENT

his individual reasons for invalidating the agreement which his organization has. Notification of intention to break the agreement was given Mr. Hines January 23, which under the 30-day clause will leave that organization without a working contract with the railroad administration on February 23, six days before the roads return to their owners.

Lee's Action Worries.
The action of Mr. Lee admittedly is giving administration officials concern. While his representatives have participated in all sessions of the general conference, Mr. Lee contended his organization had reserved the right to press its grievances for adjustment separately. He declined to add to his statement of yesterday which asserted the trainmen had waited sufficiently long for the government to force down living costs.

Decision to lay the matter before the president was made late yesterday after Director General Hines and representatives of the employees had failed to reach an agreement. The trainmen setting forth the views of the union in the controversy—one of the reasons why the unions demand an immediate increase in wages and the other explaining why Director General Hines could not agree to such increase on the eve of the turning point of the railroad to private ownership—were in course of preparation this morning and will be presented to Mr. Wilson today.

Action Problematical.
Just how much time the president will require in considering the statements is problematical but it was believed it would be short. Whether he upholds the views of Director General Hines or decides that the demands of the employees are just and should be granted, the order was expected to be a settlement finally will be made through the machinery to be set up by legislation now pending which will govern the return of the rail properties to their former owners.

As prepared for presentation to the White House the statements did not include the separate grievances of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Mr. Hines arranged to confer further today with W. G. Lee, president of that organization. Likewise Mr. Hines will confer with a committee representing the Maintenance of Way employees whose officers have called a strike to become effective Feb. 17. The action of the Maintenance of Way men in calling a strike has not been understood by railway administration officials and the conference today was expected to clear up the confusion. Neither Director General Hines nor Attorney General Palmer would discuss the possibility of meeting the proposed strike through injunction proceedings.

To Open Fifteen Strike Headquarters

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Detroit, Feb. 12.—Strike headquarters were to be opened in fifteen cities today by divisional officers of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers, from which the nation-wide strike called for Feb. 17 will be directed.

Final plans for the strike have been made, union officials here declared and only an agreement between representatives of the men in Washington and President Wilson, they said, will avert the walkout. If such agreement is reached it must come before Saturday night or the strike cannot be rescinded.

Allen Barker, international president, expressed hope that today's conferences at Washington, in which J. P. Malloy, vice-president of the union was to participate, might bring an agreement in the wage controversy. Mr. Barker was in full accord, however, he said, with the position taken by President Lee of the Trainmen's Union, that demands of the workers could not longer be held in abeyance in the face of mounting living costs.

Charged with Theft of Doctor's Clothing

Alvin Tanner was awakened from a sound sleep in his room at the Clark hotel this morning by Deputy Sheriff Joe Miller and taken to the county jail, where he breakfasted, and is still booked. Tanner was apprehended by the deputy after several days of searching, for the alleged theft of a suit of clothes and a pair of trousers from one of the cottages at the Dixon state hospital. The clothing belonged to D. Muzzelman, a patient.

At the time of the theft, about three weeks ago, Tanner was employed at the hospital, but of late has been working in Dixon. He was suspected of having taken the clothing and the sheriff's office was notified. A close watch had been kept for him but he could not be located. It was learned that the clothing had been brought to a Dixon establishment where it is said to have been altered to fit Tanner and to have been dyed. Tanner is alleged to have called for and took the clothing away last evening before the deputy could arrive and take him in custody. He admitted the theft and will be taken before Judge Crabtree in the county court tomorrow.

Dixonites May Send a "73" to Edison

Dixon admirers of T. Thomas A. Edison, electrical supply houses, telegraph and telephone companies, and motion picture houses, are given an opportunity to participate in the national celebration of that great inventor's seventy-third birthday which fell on Wednesday, Miss Esther Conley, manager of the Dixon branch of the Western Union Telegraph company said today. Local electrical companies will cooperate with engineer societies in sending birthday greetings to Mr. Edison during the remainder of the week.

In telegraphic circles it is well known that "73" is the wire symbol or sign of greeting or the general expression of good will. There are special reasons for associating this symbol with Mr. Edison's birthday, for back in 1847, in the little town of Milan, Ohio, Mr. Edison was born 73 years ago.

The telegraphic sign "73" will probably be the most popular message sent over the wires this week from every section of the country including Dixon, Miss Conley said, as by this simple little symbol, the day's greetings and the friendship of a nation can be expressed.

The invention of the telegraph is recognized by the world as one of the greatest boons ever conferred by the brain and hands of a man and the nation holds the inventor in great esteem. But this is only out of a long list of inventions for which the world is indebted to Edison. He has also given it improvements in printing, the telephone transmitter, the phonograph electric lights, storage battery and motion picture apparatus. These and many other inventions are represented by considerably more than 1000 patents in the United States alone.

Dixon to Co-operate in Safety Campaign

Dixon will join with many other American towns and cities in a nationwide publicity campaign from April 1 to 14 inclusive, announced Commissioner W. V. Slothower of this morning. The campaign will be pressed by the departments of police in the various cities principally to save the lives of children and to secure uniform traffic laws. Civic, industrial and social organizations are urged to co-operate.

Commissioner Slothower has been solicited to enter the campaign as head of the local police department in a letter he received from the Detroit department of police sent by James W. Inches, the commissioner. He has accepted the invitation by signifying that he would push the campaign and asking for further information. The details will be announced after the receipt of these instructions.

Upwards of 50 cities have agreed to conduct such a campaign during the first two weeks of April. Thousands of children were sacrificed through carelessness as a result of accidents in the public streets last year. The total number of persons, including children who lost their lives in all kinds of accidents in this country during the nineteen months we were engaged in the great war was 126,654; the number of land and sea forces killed in action was less than half.

Threw Money Away to Teach Lessons

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Northampton, Mass., Feb. 12.—Silver and gold were thrown away here yesterday to illustrate a talk on the waste represented by the alleged carelessness among factory workers. The treasurer of a hosiery company told the operatives that in a week 11,760 needles, worth 1¼ cents each had been lost.

The effect was the same, he said, as if $147 were thrown from the shop window, whereupon the treasurer took from his desk a pile of 147 silver dollars and tossed them out of the window.

Silk scattered under foot was as much destroyed as if thrown away, he added. Estimating the amount of loss from this cause last week at $50, he tossed gold coins among the workers.

Some listened to the treasurer's later remarks, others scrambled for the gold, while many hurried out of doors to search for the silver in the snow.

"Booze Ark" Made Second Start Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, Feb. 12.—The Black Star steamship, Yarmouth, sailed today for Havana with a negro captain and crew, Negro passengers and a cargo of liquor valued at $4,800,000, comprising 21,419 cases of Kentucky whiskey, 500 cases of champagne and 350 barrels of wine.

This was the vessel's second departure for Havana with almost the same cargo. She staggered out of port the day prohibition became effective but had such a heavy load that she got into trouble in a storm off the New Jersey coast and had to return, after dropping 500 cases of liquor overboard. Since then the disappearance of small lots of the cargo caused federal authorities to keep ten prohibition agents aboard at a cost of $100 a day. A few hours prior to her departure a white man was arrested while leaving the boat with two quarts of whiskey.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE

THEME OF SERMON

It is said that church attendance was relatively small in England and Germany before the great war broke out. Some Christian leaders are of the opinion that if the people of the warring nations had been more God-fearing, the war would not have come. At the service at Grace Evangelical church on Sunday evening the Rev. C. G. Unangst will speak on "Why People Do Not Go To Church." The sermon will be a fair consideration of the facts in the case and also a suggestion as to what must be done to bring about a better interest in Christianity.

OBITUARY.

LENA D. HAMMERLI

Lena Dena Hammerli was born in Palmyra township, Lee county, June 25, 1870, being a daughter of the late John J. and Caroline Hammerli, and practically her entire life was spent in the township of her birth. She was one of a family of seven children: Mary Hammerli Fults, Caroline, Olga and John, all of whom, with the parents, preceded her in death. She is survived by her only sister, Mrs. Adam Foreman, with whom she has made her home since the death of her parents, and by John Fults, Carl Fults Dodson, Frances Fults Hillman, all of California, Lena Fults, Clausding of Medford, Oregon; Walter E. and Harry F. Fults of Dixon, niece and nephews, who with her only sister, remain to mourn her passing. She will be greatly missed in the home and community in which she spent all of her life and in which she took an active interest in everything toward the betterment and welfare of all until ill health prevented. A year ago she submitted to an operation at the hospital, death relieving her never fully recovered, and on Feb. 12, after two weeks confinement at the hospital, death relieved her suffering. The funeral services, which will be private, will be held at the late home in Palmyra township at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, with burial at Sugar Grove cemetery, Rev. Tidball of the Presbyterian church officiating.

SAY DANCE COLONY SHELTERS NEW AND GREATER PAVLOVA

Has America a new and greater Pavlova? Andreas Pavley and Serge Oukrainsky, dance directors supreme, claim such is the case. And the girl in question is Anna Ludmilla, the star of 70 dancers who gambol at the Russian director's South Haven (Mich.) dance colony. No one has seen this morsel of a girl in dance action except those who reside at the colony, but Pavley and Oukrainsky predict a startling future for the girl when she makes her debut into classical dancing circles.

In cleaning mirrors and pictures great care must be taken that no water seep under the glass. Water will ruin the back of a mirror and blister the picture.
Perhaps the safest way of polish and clean these glasses is to use a damp chamomis skin. Wring the chamomis as dry as possible out of warm water. Rub the glass until perfectly clean and dip the chamomis into clean water and again wring dry. Rub the glass the second time and polish with paper if necessary, but it won't be. This way of cleaning mirrors and pictures does not endanger the frames in any way and is very satisfactory.

HOSTESSES AND LOVERS PREPARE FOR VALENTINE

Tender Remembrances to Sweethearts Will Be Sent.

Old Saint Valentine is still the patron saint for lovers from 6 to 60, if one may judge by local shop windows. For a week the daintiest display of valentines—lacey, frilly with fat cupid and plump, shiny red hearts—have been in the windows of stores in Dixon reminding everyone that Spring is coming.

The old fashioned ornate valentine of ribbon and celluloid has been replaced, say the clerks in the various stores having them for sale, by the tinted cards, with some bit of sentiment or the artistic framed greetings. Cuddling little doll valentines also replace the old fashioned lace and ribbon affairs.

If you are planning a Valentine tea, there are all sorts of clever heart decorations to add to its attractiveness. Big, middle sized and small hearts can be used in many ways, as place cards or dangle from the chandeliers. Crepe paper with cupid and hearts as a decorative and there are cunning kewpies in valentine attire, which would make lovely centerpieces for a tea or party table.

Flowers will probably be used extensively in the form of valentine remembrances this year, a very neat and attractive paper container now being shown on the local market.

A Valentine's Day hostess may find a solution for the possible between-times lull after the gaiety of arrival and before the supper hour, in an adaptation of archery. The occasion makes timely the use of tiny cupid's bows and arrows, and red paper hearts as targets.

Favors Behind Hearts

A sheet is stretched across an end of the room, leaving a small space behind the sheet. To the cloth the paper hearts are pinned, and a tiny Valentine's Day favor attached on the reverse side of the sheet behind each target. The guests are asked to stand a sufficient number of paces distant in the opposite end of the room. To the archer who makes a bull's-eye, the favor behind that particular heart is awarded.

Leap Year Game

Supper partners may be found with the same game. Names of the guests may replace the favors behind the hearts. The guests are divided into two sections, and one half is allowed to shoot for the names of the other half. Such a division may be made by selecting the men as archers to contest for the names of "fair ladies." Or, since this is leap year, the division may be reversed appropriately, with the girls contesting for their partners.

WHAT IT MEANS.

A falling off in U. S. exports to Europe, a gradual piling up of exportable goods in the United States, a movement to reduce these abnormal stocks—lower prices to American consumers, followed by lowering of wage rates in the U. S.

These are the results that may logically be expected to follow the abnormal drops in all European exchange rates. Beginning with Great Britain, virtual embargoes may be expected by many countries of Europe on imports from the United States. At abnormally low exchange rates, the flow of goods from America to Europe is bound to be reduced radically. The drop in exchange simply means that Europe's credit with America has reached the vanishing point. Europe cannot pay for goods in gold, in securities, in goods, and now she cannot pay in credit any longer. The limit has about been reached.

The result will be diminished exports from America. At the present rate of production in America, this exportable surplus is bound to pile up on the shelves of the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the jobber and the retailer. Then will come the inevitable break in prices in the United States. Certain factors may delay or impede this break in prices: Europeans nations, like Belgium and Great Britain, may recover production ability sooner than expected and begin to wipe out indebtedness with goods; strikes and industrial disturbances in America may keep production down so that the surplus will not pile up so fast; exports may be increased to the Orient and South America—but in the long run, the stoppage of exports to Europe is bound to result in a break in prices in the United States.

The "cost of living" will go down. But there is danger here. The sudden drop in the price curve will have a tendency to close factories and mills in America; American labor may suffer from unemployment just as it is getting relief from high prices. The fact that immigration has been practically shut off for four years; that labor is better organized than ever before, and that certain standards set up during the war have become more or less fixed in American industrial life will tend to mitigate, but not prevent, this inevitable lowering of wage rates.

There is comfort in the fact, however, that so far as human judgment can foresee, the lowering in PRICES will PRECEDE, and not FOLLOW the lowering of WAGES. Thus the workers, for the first time, perhaps, in history, may not suffer an actual reduction in purchasing power of their wages through reduction in their nominal wage.

This is the sequence of economic events which ought reasonably to follow from the abnormal exchange and export situation. Whether it will follow depends largely upon the good sense of American manufacturers, and American labor. The United States is in a rather frail craft on a rather stormy economic sea, and it behooves everybody to sit tight and not rock the boat.

AMERICAN PROPAGANDA.

Such stalwart Americans as Charles E. Hughes, Franklin K. Lane, Bishop Burch, Cardinal Gibbons, Theodore Roosevelt and others equally prominent have organized the Constitutional League, the object of which is the education of every citizen in the underlying principles of the national Constitution. It is planned to utilize the voluntary associations of citizens which engaged in the Liberty Loan campaigns, and the explanation and encouragement of Americanism will be accomplished through earnest, aggressive propaganda. Unless patriotism and good citizenship are dead, the work of this league should arouse dilettante, desultory and careless Americans to a sense of their responsibilities and should bring the foreign-born into closer touch with American ideals. Propaganda being the chief weapon of bolshevism and anarchy it is only good generalship to adopt the same means in fighting the enemies of American institutions.

DIXON'S POPULATION.

In some cities the taking of a census is a signal to civic organizations to exert themselves to see that the community gets full credit for every citizen. Commercial clubs circulate blanks to every household asking "Have you been counted?" and establish a working organization to register the names of as many persons who may have been left out in the official census.

Dixon's census, taken by local people, will be as near correct as the government's force could make it. The work, conscientiously done, could not have been better performed by any others. But a widespread campaign by volunteer workers would undoubtedly have picked up a considerable number of names that had been inadvertently left out. This has proven to be the case in other cities and there is no reason to believe that Dixon is an exception.

Dixon would like to be represented on the census rolls with its full count and if there is any way in which Dixon's census figures can be made larger—supposing of course that there are citizens who have not been counted—let's do it.

DISCOVERING AMERICA.

Some old documents have been recently discovered in the archives of one of the museums of Genoa, Italy. From these, it is discovered that the entire operating expense, including the cost of equipment of discovering America was about $7,000! The entire value of Columbus' three ships was $3,000—about as much as two light capacity motor trucks. Columbus himself received a princely salary amounting to $300 a year, while his two captains received a salary of $200 a year each. The members of the crew, according to this record, were paid $2.50 a month.

Columbus did a pretty cheap job, considering the results.

Wilhelm writes that he is thoroughly discouraged. Oh, cheer up. A man is never down until he is strung up.

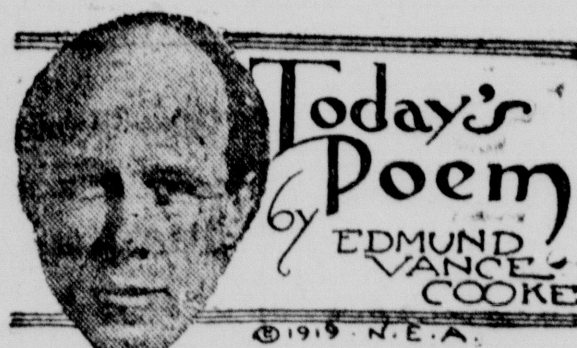

It is reported that 375,000 Austrian prisoners in Russia died of smallpox and typhus. And Bolshevitis.

John Barleycorn's estate has been inherited by two very distant relatives, Patent Medicine and Hair Tonic.

Paris whispers that the wasp-waist is coming back. Doubtless Paris will sting the buyers as usual.

You needn't ask a man whether he likes his job. Observe the quality of his work and you will know.

The birth rate in Paris is still declining, and by loafing on the job the stork may eventually do what Germany couldn't do.

Today's Poem

by EDMUND VANCE COOKE

DADDY'S VALENTINE

Daddy:
This is leap year,
so
A little girl may choose her beau,
And I've been looking 'round to find
Some nice boy to be Valentined.

I looked my school-room through at first,
The best, the medium, the worst,
But could not find a Valentine
Whose "average" was up to mine.

And ever since I'm growing tall,
The little boys seem awful small,
And big boys—oh! they act so smart
I hate 'em all, with all my heart.

But daddy, I've found out long since
That no boy, even though a prince,
Could ever, ever, ever be
As much and nice as you to me.

And so I ask you to be mine,
My own, dearest Valentine,
The best of all the boys by far,
And you can't help it—'cause you are!

"UNCLE SAM, M. D., will answer questions of general interest relating to hygiene, sanitation, and the prevention of disease. Address: INFORMATION EDITOR, U. S. Public Health Service, WASHINGTON, D. C.

NEGLECTED TEETH CAUSE SERIOUS ILLNESS.

Scientific men all over the world vie with each other in seeking the cause of the various diseases afflicting mankind. In this field of exploration the microscope and the X-ray have proved of inestimable value.

It is only recently that the teeth and mouth have been suspected of being a source of a number of serious infectious diseases, especially diseases of the heart, blood, kidney and joints. The development of X-ray photography, particularly the celluloid film, which has made the making of X-ray pictures of the teeth most convenient, has shown infected roots of teeth to be the cause of many obscure "rheumatic" and other joint troubles.

All modern up-to-date dentists now make use of X-ray pictures whenever they suspect any trouble with the roots of the teeth. Not only the dentist but the physician as well has been astonished at what these pictures have revealed to him.

Often they show that pus is present about the neck of the tooth, and that there are pockets, extending down toward the roots, which hold large quantities of putrid material. The discharge of poison and germs from these hidden abscesses at the roots of the teeth and the consequent absorption from these and other local foci into the blood stream—show a very strong causative relation, if not the real cause, of many hitherto obscure, ill-defined illnesses.

Mrs. L. S. White:

Q—I have been suffering from a nervous breakdown for eight years. I suffer much from insomnia. I find that I must take a five-grain tablet of sleep every other night for sleep. Is it a bad thing for me to take?

A—Generally speaking, no drug-induced sleep can be equivalent to natural sleep. Veronal is relatively harmless. The only advice which can be given is to consult a competent physician and have a thorough examination made. It is suggested that if no organic trouble is found by physician a thoroughly competent specialist in nervous diseases should be consulted.

Q—Is the present outbreak of disease grippe or is it influenza?
A—Some writers have attempted to make out that these are two different diseases. As a matter of fact they are merely different names for the same disease. All the evidence at hand indicates that the present disease is the same infection which caused so much havoc a year or more ago.

PINNING A MEDAL ON THE SHOP GIRL.

Early in the morning, long before bankers start to work, there is merry chirp along the thoroughfares of any city, isn't there?

Intermingled with hurrying footsteps you can hear gleeful outbursts of enthusiasm.

It's the shop girl on her way to work.

Maybe she sews buttons on the B. V. D. you wear, or perhaps, if you happen to be the other side of the family, she stitches the hem on that classy apron you don when company comes.

Maybe she wraps paper around caramels.

Maybe she pushes great pans of bread dough into a big oven.

Maybe she pads the shoulders of the suit that makes you look bigger than you really are;

Maybe she does a heap of other things we can't think of just now.

Anyway, she is usually a cheerful sort.

And there are million reasons why we should consider, and appreciate, The Shop Girl!

Confessions of a Bride

Jim said, next morning, that by training as a pilot would have to be of an intensive variety. He had been ordered to report at camp in three days.

He would leave the old bus for me to run around in, with "Serg" at the joystick, of course. She was a good old bus now that "Serg" had mended her ways. "Serg" wanted to practice some stunts, too. He had decided to advertise for a job as an "airplane chauffeur." He planned to become a pioneer in a brand-new profession. There would be a demand for experts like himself as soon as rich men who could afford it took the flying game.

"And so I'll leave the old bus for you and 'Serg,'" said Jim, then he added a warning:

"But don't you run away in it alone, Sis! Does what I'm saying make any impression on your brain cells, my dear?"

"How could I get away alone in an airship without the help of the mechanic? There! You're answered, you goose!" I exclaimed.

"You couldn't—unless 'Serg' makes his self-starter work. He's been inventing it for a year, and the darn thing is about due to go off, I should say."

"Jim, you're always digging the oddest suggestions out of your own brain cells!"

"There's a queer one, Sis, I've been wanting to hand you for days, but I didn't get a good chance. Do you remember the gink I saw on the dock in New York? The man I called Doc Certels, in spite of the fact that he was loading coffins onto a tramp steamer?"

"The man pretended not to understand you. He answered you in Spanish."

"Well, what I haven't told you is that when I was climbing over my ship that day at the hacienda, I looked straight into the upper story of one of the buildings. My dear, I saw those same coffins, piled up in neat rows, just as they were on the New York dock!"

"My goodness gracious!" was the only comment I could make.

"I stuck around on the wing of the bus pretending to feel for flaws, but actually making a mental photo of that room. And I swear to you, Jane, that in one corner I saw a machine gun! So, I don't go much on intuition, not for as strong man as you know, but my hunch is that there's one or more machine guns in each of those coffins!"

I couldn't help thinking of the machine guns I had discovered in the basement of Certels' town house.

"Cert is alive, sure!" said Jim positively. "We've both seen him more than once. And those guns are mighty close to the border!"

"He's one of the bandits, Jim! He saved me from the gang that held up the train!" I recited all of the long story to my brother-in-law.

"Saved you, Jane? No-sir-e-e! He knew you would go straight to the kiddie. He preferred to trap you—under his own roof."

"But for you, he would have succeeded, Jimmy-boy," I stammered.

"Cut the sob-stuff, honey," said Jim, not roughly, but in defense of his own feelings.

"He expected to trap me! So that was why the Ancient Mona Lisa stuck to me with her superstitions and her mystery tales! That was why the little girl spied upon me—and reported to the administrator!"

"And why the administrator clipped my wing with a bullet!" said Jim very fiercely. "But that's all put behind us. You're safe north of the river, though I do wish you'd pack up and go home before I leave. But you won't. You'll wait for Bob. I guess you'll be all right, if you promise never to get into the bus without Serg's permission."

THE LOST COLORS

"Are you a rainbow?" asked Nancy, as a streak of beautiful colors flashed by.

"No more than you are a sunbeam," said the colors. "But perhaps you are, you have such pretty yellow hair, and look so bright."

"Oh, no!" laughed Nancy. "I'm only a twin. Nick and I came here to The Land of Lost Things to look for our lost toy money."

"Money! Let me see," said the colors, thoughtfully. "I believe I know you. Do you have a magical mushroom and a pair of green shoes that take your places?"

"Yes, yes!" cried Nancy. "But I don't remember you."

"I'm not surprised," said the colors. "But I lived at your house once. Yes, indeed! And I belonged to you. Your name's Nancy, isn't it?"

The little girl nodded. "Um—hm. That's me."

"I'm out of your last new dress," said the colors. But I left so quickly it's no wonder you forgot all about me."

Nancy looked closely at the beautiful shades of pink and blue and green, all mixed together. "Why, so you are," she said in surprise. "When you went away the dress got so ugly I can't wear it any more. But why did you leave?"

"I didn't want to leave at all, I liked you so much. But I had to. It was the laundress' fault. She boiled me and I can't stand hot water, so I ran. Good-bye. I wish I could go home with you, but I can't. I'm lost forever, you see."

ABE LINCOLN SAID:

Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; a positive good to the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence, is just encouragement to energy and enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him labor diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built.

INSPIRATION FROM LIFE OF A. LINCOLN

Sec. Lansing Sees Lesson for All in Martyr's Devotion.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—The American people were advised today by Secretary Lansing to find in the life of Abraham Lincoln the inspiration to forget self in devotion to country and to the fundamental national principles of liberty and justice.

"The memory of Lincoln," said the secretary of state, "of his humble origin, of his attainment to the highest honor in the gift of his fellow countrymen, of his unsurpassed service to the republic and of his character as a man and as a public servant is one of the great spiritual assets of this nation."

"It is in turning our thoughts to the career of this great American that we learn the true meaning of patriotism and gain a true conception of the opportunities which America offers to those who inspired by lofty ideals press onward along the path of unselfish public service."

"In commemorating the birth of Abraham Lincoln, we do honor to the American spirit of which he is the personification. He is the typical American for future generations, the inspiration for us all to forget self in devotion to our country and to the eternal principles of liberty and of justice which are the life blood of the nation."

LINCOLN ALLIANCE MEETS.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Cleveland, O., Feb. 12.—Closer cooperation by employer and employees in elimination of their misunderstandings is the aim of the reconstruction conference of the Lincoln-American Alliance here today. About 300 business, labor, political and university leaders of the country are attending.

The conference will close with a banquet tonight, at which Major General Wood, presidential candidate; Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico; Dr. John Wesley Hill, chancellor of the Lincoln Memorial University at Cumberland Gap, Md., and others will speak.

"We are trying to spread the gospel of Lincoln, who stood for reconciliation and co-operation in all lines of American endeavor," Dr. Hill declared. "Today's conference is the first of a series to be held in all sections of the country for which we have adopted the slogan, 'Lincoln, I see America.'"

Lincoln—When First Elected President

Contained in these two Lincoln faces is a world of suggestion to mortal man who must face trouble, hardships, sorrows, any or all of the unpleasant things of human life.

The one picture shows Lincoln as he appeared when first elected president. It is the face of a man looking earnestly, honestly, steadfastly into a problem he must solve, a load he must carry, an effort he must make. A visitor at the White House, during the time when hope stirred feebly in northern hearts, wrote:

"The lines were deeper in the president's face than when I saw him in his own home the cheeks more sunken. They had lines of care and anxiety. For 18 months he had borne a burden such as has fallen upon few men."

"It is in turning our thoughts to the career of this great American that we learn the true meaning of patriotism and gain a true conception of the opportunities which America offers to those who inspired by lofty ideals press onward along the path of unselfish public service."

must carry, an effort he must make. A visitor at the White House, during the time when hope stirred feebly in northern hearts, wrote:

"The lines were deeper in the president's face than when I saw him in his own home the cheeks more sunken. They had lines of care and anxiety. For 18 months he had borne a burden such as has fallen upon few men."

"It is in turning our thoughts to the career of this great American that we learn the true meaning of patriotism and gain a true conception of the opportunities which America offers to those who inspired by lofty ideals press onward along the path of unselfish public service."

"In commemorating the birth of Abraham Lincoln, we do honor to the American spirit of which he is the personification. He is the typical American for future generations, the inspiration for us all to forget self in devotion to our country and to the eternal principles of liberty and of justice which are the life blood of the nation."

Lincoln—A Few Days Before His Death

The very last moment of his life found a smile on his face. The theater audience turned toward the presidential box, where the assassin's bullet had reaped its harvest. Only one in all that house "heard nothing, saw nothing, thought nothing. His head had fallen quietly on his breast, his arms had relaxed a little, the SMILE WAS STILL ON HIS LIPS."

The other picture from a photograph made a few days before his death, shows how well Lincoln could smile after years of carrying a nation's war horrors and problems. He came through it all with a smile.

Propositions for the annexation of three tracts of land to the Sterling municipal corporation, submitted to the voters of that city at a special election Tuesday, carried by large majorities. There are nearly a hundred houses in the annexed territories and more are under course of construction.

Yanks in Germany Must Stay Single

American Headquarters, Coblenz, Feb. 1.—(By Mail to Associated Press.)—Two hundred and fifty soldiers of the American forces in Germany who have married European girls have been instructed to start soon for America with their wives in accordance with a recent order of Major General Henry T. Allen, in command.

In connection with this order it was also announced that army authorities would not consent in future to marriages of American soldiers on duty in the occupied area, officers contending that men without wives in Germany are better soldiers under the present circumstances.

About 200 soldiers have married German girls since the American forces reached the Rhine, the others included in the order having married principally French girls or young women from Belgium or Luxembourg.

The first prohibition movement in history was that of the German Order of St. Christopher in 1517.

THE WOMAN WHO LOVED--AND EARNED

DISCOURAGED.
CHAPTER 58.
Robert was completely recovered, but he seemed singularly unambitious. He had said nothing about a position to him but as day after day passed and he either dawdled at home or in the street, I made up my mind it would be wise to talk with him. I was afraid he would get in the habit of going to the pool parlors, and to be honest I feared he might spend his idle days with Marion Hovey. Naturally, too, I wanted him to earn something. While my salary supported us, it did not leave us anything for extras.
I had invited the Murphys and the Weeds two or three times while Robert was obliged to remain in the house and even the simple supper I provided was more than I could afford. We could live if Robert did not work, just as we might have lived had I thrown up my position when we were first married. But we could have none of the luxuries. Everything went to provide how very wise I had been to hold on to my job.
"Here's an advertisement sounds promising," I said one evening to introduce the subject of getting a position. "You may like to hunt it up tomorrow if you feel well enough. Robert was walking nervously about the room. "Do sit down Dear! you will drive me wild pacing back and forth like that."
He took the paper and threw himself into a chair. He read aloud: "Wanted--A good salesman in first-class sporting goods house. Good references required, and a good salary paid." Sounds all right, but who will give me the good references?"
"Why everyone for whom you have worked. Surely you deserve at least a good reference, even from Calding."
"Oh, they'll say I am honest, and that's about all I imagine!" not the slightest interest in his tone.
"Honest and willing, besides knowing your business--the goods, is about all references amount to anyway, isn't it?"
"Yes, I guess so."
Robert did not secure that position, although my bringing it to his notice seemed to have awakened a desire to get to work, as he now made a note of advertisements which seemed at all what he wanted. He spent hours each day answering them only to find he was either too late, lacked experience in that particular line, or something. It was discouraging, I admitted, when I read and cross he fretted at me, declaring he was "no good."
"I don't know what to do with Robert!" I said to Mary Ryan in desperation one day. "He's getting so discouraged he is cross and unreasonable about everything."
"No sign of a job yet?"
"No, and it's three weeks since he began to hunt for one."
"Too bad, Gerry. I guess little Mary will have to see if she can't help a little. I believe Leas would give him a job in the wholesale if I asked him. He's got a lot of work down there just now."
"But Robert doesn't know anything about hats!"
"He can learn, can't he? Then he might get in the office, bookkeeper or something."

WINNER PLAYERS
Many patrons were turned away from the Dixon opera house last evening unable to get seats to see the winning players in their production of Winchell Smith's great play, "The Only Son." When we say production, that is just what we mean, for they gave a performance that was strong cast to special scenery and effects, and it was far above the efforts of many one night stands.
Adolph Winniger as "Tom," the only son, was excellent as usual. Adelaide Melotte was fine as the mother, playing the part with refinement and good taste. Hugh J. Adams as Mr. Brainerd, the father, was clever and sustained the already good reputation he has held here for years. John D. Winniger handed himself a small part in this bill, but his artistic work was thoroughly enjoyed nevertheless.
Miss Hazel McNitt, the new leading lady this season, is gaining many friends here. As Ann Lester she was charming. Rosalind Barrett as Gertrude was "no good."

trude Brainerd was as sweet and pretty as ever. Lawrence Armsman as Lord Overtourne played the strong character effectively. William Seymour as Jim Thompson, J. W. Kelley as Charles Lester, and Hazel Williams in the dual roles of Mrs. John Loyd Roach and Wanda played their parts exceptionally well.
Tonight's attraction will be that great moral comedy drama, "Which One Shall I Marry?"

THE VISITOR
The interesting announcement of Porter J. White's appearance in the new whimsical melodrama "The Visitor" is one of the important theatrical events of the season. Mr. White, whose work as a character actor is known wherever the theatre has patrons, has for some seasons given his time to dramatic sketches in the better class vaudeville theatres and returns to the legitimate theatre with a play that is said to offer him the greatest opportunities of his career.
Being a melodrama, "The Visitor" has its sensational element, but its whimsical flavor robs the play of any charge of morbidness. In the part played by Mr. White the salient feature is mystery. This quality tinged with humor will be found in most of the classic stage characters, the audience following them with sympathetic curiosity. The story told is one of immediate interest and reaches a terrific point of intensity. While the setting is modern, the theme is elemental and belongs to all times and peoples. With a directness of movement that carries the auditor into its central situation "The Visitor" works out the destiny of this strange figure and Mr. White's performance is one of the greatest bits of character delineation that the theatre has ever seen.
This splendid representative of the best in dramatic art will be seen at the Dixon opera house on Tuesday evening.
